PREAMBLE:—

There are a few cases of widows of deceased Government servants receiving pension sanctioned by the Government of His Highness the Maharaja of Mysore at a time when the pension rules of that Government did not provide for family pension. These pensions were treated as special pensions. The benefit of minimum pension and the benefit of Dearness Allowance on pension, as sanctioned by this Government, from time to time, have not been extended to this category of pensioners. The Accountant-General has stated that these pensions are similar to the compassionate pensions sanctioned under the Rules framed therefor by the former Hyderabad Government. The benefit of minimum family pension and Dearness Allowance as sanctioned by this Government from time to time has already been extended, to the recipients of such compassionate pension. The Accountant-General has also admitted that, in some cases, the recipients of special pension have already been paid the benefit of minimum family pension and Dearness Allowance as sanctioned by this Government from time to time.
